

Resources for Aotearoa New Zealand's histories in social sciences

KEY

Resources for Aotearoa New Zealand's histories in social sciences

LINKED TO AOTEAROA NEW ZEALAND'S HISTORIES IN THE NEW ZEALAND CURRICULUM

Learning Experiences Outside the Classroom (LEOTC)

LEOTC supports community-based organisations to provide students with learning experiences that complement and enhance student learning, in alignment with the national curriculum.

SEE: <https://eotc.tki.org.nz/LEOTC-home/Providers-by-region>

Connected - Culture and Histories, years 4-8

The Connected series has provided rich student texts and teacher guidance with a STEM focus. Now it will have an Aotearoa New Zealand's histories and culture focus and will be available in te reo Māori and English language versions. (Also linked to Te Marautanga o Aotearoa)

AVAILABLE: Term 1, 2022

Multimedia packages, years 1-3

Four themed multi-media packages will support students with foundational learning for Aotearoa New Zealand's histories in social studies. Each themed set will have accompanying teacher support materials.

AVAILABLE: From November 2021

Units of inquiry for Aotearoa New Zealand's histories, years 1-10

These units will centre on national contexts students can learn through, and about. Each unit will support teachers with their knowledge of the context and with providing rich learning opportunities for their students.

AVAILABLE: From November 2021

School Journal histories collections teacher support materials

These teacher support materials will showcase existing histories-related texts from the School Journal series. The materials will offer examples of how to use these texts to support rich learning opportunities in Aotearoa New Zealand's histories.

AVAILABLE: From July 2021

School Journal and other series - reviews and teacher guidance

Histories-related texts from School Journal, School Journal Story Library, Connected, and Junior Journal, are being reviewed by a small group of historians. These reviews, including guidance for teachers, will be published online.

AVAILABLE: Term 4, 2021

Tūhura | Aotearoa Explorers, years 1-10

Tūhura will provide four levelled collections of artefacts at years 1-3, 4-6, 7-8 and 9-10. Each collection will provide a template for students to explore the histories around the objects, along with teacher guidance on how to shape and adapt the resources for their inquiry.

AVAILABLE: From November 2021

Something Happened Here, years 4-10

Students (and teachers!) will embark on scaffolded investigations into the histories behind locations - uncovering the stories, building their understandings, and practising critical inquiry.

AVAILABLE: For teachers who register at School Kit, delivered in Term 1, 2022

Social Sciences Online

This TKI website has updates and resources for social sciences. Teachers can find out about and access resources here, including the Aotearoa New Zealand's histories resources guide, which highlights some of the rich information already available.

AVAILABLE: Updated regularly

Leading Local Curriculum Guide One

This curriculum guide supports school leaders to understand and plan for Aotearoa New Zealand's histories in social sciences. It explores the foundational and key capabilities for engaging with the new curriculum content.

AVAILABLE: Now at The New Zealand Curriculum Online - Leading Local Curriculum Guide Series

Leading Local Curriculum Guide Two

This curriculum guide builds on the first guide. It supports school leaders to move into thinking in more detail about the implementation of the new curriculum content within social sciences.

AVAILABLE: November 2021

Regional resources stocktake

This research project will uncover local resources, including places, people, organisations, and digital and print materials. These will then be curated into useful information for schools on local/regional resources for histories.

COMPLETED: December 2021

An iwi history, years 8-10

Using the histories in these books, teachers can support students to explore part of an iwi history (more details to come). The four student books and teacher support materials will be available in te reo Māori and English language versions. (Also linked to Te Marautanga o Aotearoa)

AVAILABLE: Term 1, 2022

The Aotearoa History Show season two

The Ministry of Education is supporting season two of this RNZ podcast. Fourteen new episodes of the video series and podcasts will be available, as well as short animations for younger audiences. The Ministry of Education will provide accompanying teacher guidance for the series.

AVAILABLE: From February 2022

Board of Trustees information

This information will help school trustees understand critical parts of the histories curriculum content and its relevance for their work.

AVAILABLE: Term 3, 2021 on the NZSTA website

Our Stories

These A3 posters provide examples of existing histories-related texts from School Journal, School Journal Story Library, Connected, and Junior Journal. The posters link these texts about the histories of a range of groups to the progress outcomes in the draft curriculum content.

AVAILABLE: July 2021, Social Sciences Online - Aotearoa New Zealand's histories

Regional resources digital map

The information from the regional resources stocktake will be available online in an interactive map. Users will be able to select an area to find information in te reo Māori and in English.

AVAILABLE: Term 1, 2022

Histories books for school libraries

In May and June 2021, schools and kura were invited to order up to $200 of high-quality Aotearoa New Zealand's histories books for their libraries.

AVAILABLE: Deliveries completed by end of July 2021

Local critical histories

A Ministry of Education team is working with iwi and with other groups in school communities to identify critical histories from their rohe and how they might want these to be explored in schools.

AVAILABLE: Ongoing

Resources for Aotearoa New Zealand's histories in social sciences

TIMELINE

